FIRST RESPONDER OVERVIEW

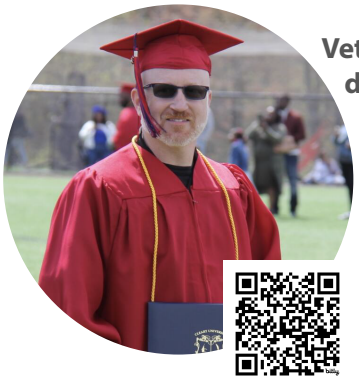

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

Cleary University's offers accelerated bachelor's and master's degree pathways tailored for first responders, support staff, and their families. Established in 1883, Cleary University is a private, non-profit institution in Michigan, located between Lansing and Ann Arbor. The university serves both traditional and professional students and features 20 varsity sports teams competing in the NAIA WHAC Conference.

Cleary has collaborated with over 20 departments, including Detroit PD, Michigan State Police, and Ohio State Highway Patrol. The university offers undergraduate programs such as BSB in Organizational Leadership, BSB in Cybersecurity Management, and BSB in Project Management, as well as graduate programs like an MBA in Executive Leadership and an MS in Culture, Change, and Leadership. These programs are appealing due to their credit transferability from academy training, previous college education, and other training, allowing students to complete their degrees online in as little as a year, with minimal out-of-pocket costs.

With over 1,400 graduates and 450 current students, Cleary's program is successful due to its flexibility and efficiency, enabling many students to transition seamlessly from undergraduate to master's programs.
